SBU Theater to present original fall Shakespearean production

By Laura Tucker

SBU Theater will perform an original play, "The Inner Above: A Shakespearean Journey," at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, Nov. 9-12, in The Regina A. Quick Center for the Arts.

Director Dr. Ed. Simone, associate professor and director of the theater program, is writing "The Inner Above" in collaboration with John Neville Andrews, head of performance in the theater department at the University of Michigan. Simone says that the play is actually being re-written and revised as the student actors rehearse and bring their own creative and personal responses to the work.

The cast features 12 actors playing about 30 different roles as the modern central character, a girl named Kaci, searches for meaning in her life through the lens of about a dozen Shakespearean plays.

"I'm very excited about The Inner Above as a performance piece and as a project," said Simone, "It's meant to be an exciting, even inspirational story about one young actor's struggle to find self-worth and direction in life. We've taken a contemporary approach to some of Shakespeare's timeless works."

Cast members include:

- *Jennifer Albanese, Allen, Texas
- *Patrick Devers,
South Euclid, Ohio
- *Judy Chiariello,
Franklinville

- *Ben Gregg,
University Heights, Ohio
- *Blair Knowles, Olean
- *Emily Rose Maher,
Blasdell, N.Y.
- *Kara Manning, Olean
- *Stephanie Nikolaou,
Rochester
- *Matthew Osrsini, Allen, Texas
- *Gabriel Potter, Olean
- *Stephen Schrader,
Fredericksburg, Va.
- *Elizabeth Schumer,
Hamburg

The production is part of The Regina A. Quick Center for the Arts' semester celebrating the works of William Shakespeare, billed as "The Shakespeareance."

Simone hopes audiences will take advantage of the SBU Theater's new "Friday Talk-Back." Following the Friday performance of "The Inner Above," the audience is invited to remain seated for an informal discussion with the cast, technicians, and the director about the production.

Tickets for "The Inner Above" are available to the public for $8 and to subscribers, seniors and employees for $6. Free student rush seating is available one hour before curtain time at the box office in-person with a valid student ID.

SBU Theater productions are presented by the Department of Visual and Performing Arts in cooperation with The Regina A. Quick Center for the Arts and are part of the growing academic Theater Program at St. Bonaventure University.

COMMUNICATIONS DAY 2005

Pulitzer Prize-winner to give keynote address

By Kevin Carey

Pulitzer Prize-winner Charles Hanley of The Associated Press will give the keynote address, "Why is Journalism Important?" for SBU's Communications Day on Friday.

Hanley has been a roving correspondent assigned to the AP's International Desk in New York for most of the past 23 years. He has reported from more than 80 countries on stories ranging from wars and summit conferences, to the plight of a threatened tribe in New Guinea. He recently spent nine months in Afghanistan and Iraq reporting on the crisis and conflicts in those countries.

Hanley's international reporting has won awards from the Overseas Press Club, the AP Managing Editors association, Brown University's Feinstein media awards program, and the Korn-Ferry awards for reporting on the United Nations.

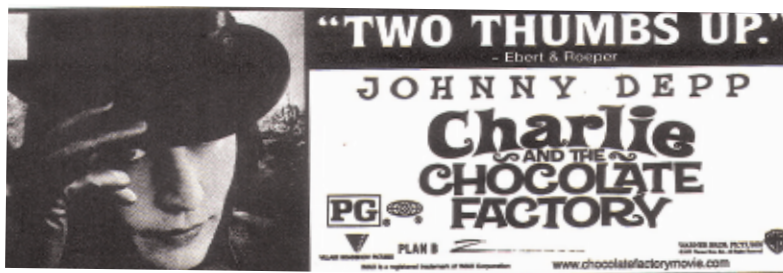

Hanley and his AP collaborators also won 11 major journalism awards, including the Pulitzer Prize for investigative journalism and a George Polk Award for their reporting on U.S. military's killing of refugees at No Gun Ri, South Korea, in 1950.

Hanley joined the AP in 1968 in Albany, N.Y., where he became a political correspondent, and then bureau news editor. He moved to AP Foreign Desk in 1976, served as AP assistant, and then as deputy managing editor. He was later named a special correspondent, a title awarded to only a few of AP journalists.

Communications Day focuses on the needs of high school journalists under adviser supervision. It introduces students and teachers involved in newspapers, literary magazines, yearbooks and radio and television shows to media professionals. The professional participants hold sessions ranging from sports, to public relations, to interviews to photojournalism. All professionals who participate represent a rich history in journalism experience in media and communication areas.
