The Buzz is now online

St. Bonaventure University's radio station (WSBU-FM 88.3 The Buzz) has joined Live365.com, the world's largest Internet radio network, exposing Bona's voice to the world.

During the spring 2006 semester, The Buzz's board of directors presented a written proposal to the members of the University's Board of Trustees in hopes of expanding the station's listenership, which currently only has about a 15-mile radius on an AM/FM radio.

"Only communities as far as Salamanca and Cuba could hear the Buzz," said Buzz programming director Chris DeMarchis. "Live streaming is huge because now anybody in the world, including alumni, parents and friends, can hear the The Buzz at the convenience of their computer and an internet connection."

The Board of Trustees approved livestreaming over the summer, but there were some initial questions regarding content on the air.

"The Board of Trustees had some concerns regarding DJs bashing the University, but we included in the proposal that we would have a stricter control of what goes over the air, said DeMarchis. "We are continually trying to make the shows sound better and more professional by providing DJs with feedback on their shows."

Roger Keener, director of the counseling center and The Buzz's adviser, assisted in the proposal for live streaming because he said it is a great recruiting tool for the University.

"Not only does live streaming improve the quality and reputability at the station, it adds a positive light on the University," Keener said. "If a prospective student stumbles on the web site (www.wsbufm.net), he or she can simply click the link on the bottom of the page that brings the user right to the SBU Website. This is a great recruitment tool because live streaming is going to attract a lot of prospective freshmen. The Buzz could be the deciding factor between a student picking St. Bonaventure or another school."

The Buzz operates at 165 watts, is nationally ranked No. 2 by the Princeton Review and offers the local community a variety of music including modern rock, alternative and hip-hop along with news, sports and specialty shows.

Live365, launched in 1999, now represents 150 countries and gets 4 million listeners a month.

Colleges Against Cancer smokes out campus

The leading cause of cancer death in the United States is also the most preventable. Students and faculty at St. Bonaventure University will do their part this month to kick the habit of smoking and win the battle against lung cancer.

The Colleges Against Cancer members at the University, in conjunction with the American Cancer Society, are asking smokers to quit Nov. 16, the date of the Great American Smokeout. It may be as simple as giving up one cigarette at a time, or going cold turkey and quitting smoking altogether. Whether you are a college student who has just picked up the habit, a two-pack-a-day smoker or have never picked up a cigarette, there is something beneficial for you at the Great American Smokeout.

There are many ways to get educated about the risks of smoking. Visit the Colleges Against Cancer table for the Great American Smokeout from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 16, and Friday, Nov. 17, in the Reilly Center lobby. Help the cause by reading educational material provided by Colleges Against Cancer.

Smokers can put cigarettes in a bowl and receive raffle tickets for a prize. Non-smokers may purchase three raffle tickets for $1. All proceeds benefit the American Cancer Society. Guess how many butts are in a jar (picked up by the group from St. Bonaventure campus walkways) and win. Most importantly, make a commitment to a smoke-free life.

Colleges Against Cancer plans on getting the campus community interested in Relay For Life next spring. Participate in the Relay Rally from 7 to 8 p.m. on Nov. 16 in the Richter Center. Students, faculty and staff can learn how to get involved in Relay For Life, enjoy refreshments and prepare to "Be The Cure" at the Relay For Life in the spring.

During Relay For Life, teams of students, faculty and staff will run or walk laps in March 2007 to raise money for cancer research and programs. The sponsored teams keep at least one member on the track at all times during the all-night event. Refreshments and live music will keep participants going. According to the American Cancer Society, the event represents the hope that those who face cancer will be supported, those lost to cancer will never be forgotten and that one day cancer will be eliminated. The St. Bonaventure University community raised $15,000 through Relay For Life last year. Event planners hope to raise $20,000 this year.
