

fact through the columns of the newspapers. They will have no need of bounty brokers, for those who need them will not be long in making their wants known.

CAPT. WILLIAM BIRD.—This brave and excellent officer, who was wounded in the knee in front of Petersburg, arrived in Town on Thursday last and is now at home with his family near this village. This is the second time the Captain has been sought out by a Rebel bullet, but he will be well in a few days, and as plucky and as full of fight as ever.

RIOT AT CORRY.—We learn that a serious riot occurred at Corry, Pennsylvania, on the afternoon of the Fourth. A number of persons were engaged in good-naturedly switching each other with boughs, when a quarrel arose out of the rough amusement, and soon a hundred or more were engaged in a fierce fight. A number were severely beaten before the disturbance could be quelled.

ENROLLING OFFICERS.—Col. S. W. JOHNSON has appointed the following enrolling officers for this Regimental District: Persia and Ferrysburg, W. F. VOSBURGH; Dayton and Loomis, N. P. COOPER; Otto and East Otto, J. R. MALDIE; Mansfield and New Albion, W. R. BURBOUNS; Conewango and Napoli, JASON SIBLEY; Randolph and South Valley, R. R. CROWLEY; Little Valley, Cold-spring and Salamanca, F. BECKLEN; Elllicottville and Great Valley, G. W. BAILEY.

PANTECHNICON!—Reader, if you wish to know the exact meaning of this word, just call in at the store of D. D. LUDLOW, Center Street, Dunkirk, and its comprehensive definition will at once flash fully upon your mind. It is, indeed, "a place where every species of workmanship is collected and exposed for sale." Pictures and picture frames, photographic albums and photographs, and all kinds of beautiful articles to please the eye and gratify the fancy may be found there in lavish abundance.

SPURIOUS FIFTY CENT NOTES.—The recent emission of spurious fifty cent notes (the new plate) has been put in circulation. They are an eighth of an inch shorter than the genuine; the words "fifty cents," which surmount the head of Washington, are very pale and indistinct, while the letters are very black and distinct in the genuine. The bronze circles around the head in the counterfeit can hardly be seen while the genuine is a deep red. The spurious though indistinct in all its outlines, is darker than the original.

GINGER BEER.—Take of ginger, washed or sliced, one and a half ounces; cream tartar, one ounce; loaf sugar, one pound; one quart sliced. Put them into a pan, and pour six quarts of boiling water upon them. When well mixed, pour in a little yeast, stir it for ten minutes. Let it stand till next day. Strain and bottle it. Let it also drink in a glass. The cork should be tied.

last week he was taken to the insane asylum of the Sisters of Charity in the city of Buffalo, and we confidently hope that under the care of the managers of that most excellent institution, he will eventually be restored to his former health and usefulness. His sagacious counsels and remarkable energy will be sadly missed in this County during the present political campaign, and by none more sadly than by his associates of the Freeman who know and fully appreciate his worth as a man, a politician and a journalist.

DEATH OF CAPTAIN ALLANSON CROSBY.—The painful tidings reached this village on Monday evening last that Captain ALLANSON CROSBY, of the 15th N. Y. Vols. had died of his wounds in the Officers' Hospital at Nashville, Tennessee, and that his body had that day been forwarded to his friends here.—Capt. CROSBY was a lawyer by profession, a young man of much promise, of fine culture, excellent abilities and pleasing address. Enlisting in the 15th at the organization of that Regiment, he was chosen 2d Lieutenant, and upon the death of the lamented NOYES at the battle of Chancellorsville, he took his place as Adjutant. He was taken prisoner at Gettysburg, but subsequently escaped from his captives and made his way back to our lines by swimming the Potomac at the imminent peril of losing his life. For many months thereafter he was stationed at Elmira on detached service, but becoming weary of such a life, he sought and obtained permission to rejoin his Regiment at Chattanooga. All the way from Lookout Mountain to Rocky Face Ridge he fought like a hero as he was, but at the latter place he received the wound which resulted in his death. Thus at the early age of 27 years another of our most gifted and beloved young men has laid down his life upon the altar of his country. To his aged parents, and to his other relatives and numerous friends, we tender the assurance of our heartfelt sympathy in their sad and painful bereavement.

SEWARD & BENTLEY.—While in Buffalo, last week, we called in at the Drug establishment of Messrs. SEWARD & BENTLEY, No. 189 Main Street, where we found both members of the firm busily engaged in attending to customers, and evidently doing a large and paying business. The demand for their "Constitution Bitters," a very pleasant and healthy drink for invalids, and not at all hard to take for those whom nothing ails, is already large and rapidly extending, and their sales have already amounted to several thousands of dollars. The "Bitters" give the best satisfaction and dealers east and west are ordering them in immense quantities. Their assortment of drugs, perfumery, fancy articles, &c., is large and well-selected, and beside their local trade they are continually receiving orders from the country. They are liberal, energetic and thorough business men, and we are glad to note their successful and prosperous career.

A Tribute to the Memory of the Late Capt. Allanson Crosby.

Correspondence of the Cattaraugus Freeman.
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 1, 1864, }
NATIONAL FAST DAY. }

Yesterday there came to me the saddest tiddings! And ever since, a great silence has fallen on my soul, wherein I walk as in a dream. Yet, through it all, a sound, nay, no sound, but rather silence audible, has haunted me unceasingly, like a faint, far-off echo of the words: "I have seen an end of all perfection." Last night it would not let me sleep; faint and far off it seemed indeed, yet it was more distinct than the fitful wind or the fast-falling rain: to-day it has come back with me into the busy world, and makes itself heard above all the din of city life. Shall I break the spell? Shall I banish this ghostly echo by writing of it here?

"ALLANSON Crosby is dead," so ran the brief record, "he died from a wound received in a late battle at the South-West. His body was brought here and taken to Franklinville for interment. He breathed his last in hospital at Nashville."

ALLANSON Crosby! How plainly I see him as I saw him last, in all the glow and pride of youth, of brilliant talents, of superb, surpassing beauty! His splendid eyes, blue and quiet in repose, but black, deep, blazing, in the excitement of conversation, shine now with all their wonted cordial brightness. I hear his musical voice, his merry laugh—how can I think of him and death together! Can it be true?
Listen, and again that dreary monotone fills the strange silence of my soul. Yes! I have seen an end of all perfection. Dead—dead,— another of our best and bravest gone to heap the hecatomb to the foul demon Slavery! Another victim to this accursed rebellion! How long, O Lord, how long, shall thine enemies triumph over the dissolution they have wrought!

When the first war meeting was holden in your village, ALLANSON Crosby was among the speakers. His handsome face glowed with enthusiasm, and his voice rang out, clear, bold and spirit-stirring, as the notes of martial music. Do you remember his closing words:—
"LIVING THAT FLAG shall gladden my eyes, and dying its folds shall enshroud me." There was a brief silence as he resumed his seat, followed by a tumult of applause. Ah, how long, how unbroken, would have been the silence, if that assembly could have foreseen how soon those last solemn words should be verified!

I was not surprised to hear that he had enlisted, nor afterwards to learn how swiftly and warily he had endeared himself to his entire Regiment—how he was the chosen friend and ally and companion of every officer, the friend and ally of every private. How, in a favor was wanted by any of the men, Allanson Crosby's influence would be sought, and always sought in vain to be disappointed. His difficulties were not companion of every officer, the friend and ally of every private; how, if a favor was wanted by any of the men, Lieutenant Crosby's influence was sought, and never sought in vain; how he adjusted their difficulties, wrote their letters, was, in a hundred nameless ways, always at their service, and how every soldier of them would have laid down his life for "the Lieutenant." And when he was appointed to fill the place of our generous and lamented friend, brave Adjutant Noyes, whose heart's blood stained the battle-field of Chancellorsville, all felt that the latter was worthily succeeded, that Adjutant Crosby merited his promotion.

In my late nomadic life, but scant views of his military career has reached me. I heard last summer, how, having been taken prisoner by the rebels, he, with a companion, heavily suffered the most fearful fatigues and privations, and periled life itself in order to escape from their hands; how they reached the Union lines utterly exhausted and nearly dead—how their joy at being once more under the protection of the dear old Flag amply repaid them for all they had endured, and how Adjutant Crosby was subsequently promoted to a Captaincy. Since then I have heard of our brief visit home, a slight respite from his hazardous duties, and nothing more until the news of yesterday. And can it be true? Can his young life, with all its splendid possibilities, have passed from earth forever?

When the heroic Captain BARRITT fell, (honored be his memory, and may he rest in peace!) THEODORE SMITH said in his emphatic, peculiar manner: "Such an event as this exasperates me. I hold always a deadly hatred of this diabolical, pro-slavery rebellion, but, when such a man falls its victim, the feeling changes to blazing and vindictive wrath." Such a feeling is mine. I know no better expression of it. And it seems to me that the entire North, when it sees its bravest and most beautiful thus consigned, must awake to the same fierce hatred of the rebellion and its guilty egues.

Come, pledge me in a glass of pure cold water—fit beverage for a Fast Day, and for all days—let us drink, standing and in solemn silence: "Immortal honor to our Fallen Brave —access to the cause of Truth and Freedom—death and eternal infamy to the rebellion and to rebels—and confusion, shame, and equal infamy to all their sympathizers at the North!"
